The Actor's Fame.

Most people would like to live in the future, but it was the desire of Hazlitt that he might live over again that portion of the past upon which the names of the great artists of tragedy and comedy had been recorded, from Mrs. Betterton, the first Juliet, to Mrs. Siddons, the last that he saw. We can imagine no nobler company, most of whom won honorable graves in Westminster Abbey, side by side with the authors whose lines they interpreted, with the kings and warriors and statesmen before whom they played. We know so little about them, and so much less regarding the manner of their art, for they alone of artists could leave no copy behind. They come down to us now only as so many names, laden with an anecdote or so. Yet after all, we are not certain that the actor's fame is not the most satisfactory. It comes to him quick upon his earning of it, and not, like the author's or painter's, after he is dead. The actor leaps to his reward in a single night; he may have to wait, toil, and hunger for that night for years together, but his moments of triumph are supreme ones. When Charles Macklin walked off the stage, after playing Shylock for the first time, he exclaimed in the fulness of his success: "I am not worth fifty pounds in the world; nevertheless, on this night am I Charles the Great." When Kean came home to his wife after his debut as Sir Giles, she asked him how that dreaded critic, Lord Essex, had liked the performance. His jubilant reply, "Dama Lord Essex-the pit rose at me," suggestive still of his great victory; but what must have been to him a yet finer triumph was when the "pit rose at" him to drive him from the stage not because he did not play well, but because he loved his neighbor's wife better than his own. For one justant he savagely confronted his audience, then flung at it, to its entire discomfiture, a speech from the part of Richard, that he was playing: "Unmannered dogs! stand ye when I command."

Among the men of the dramatic period to which we have referred there was Betterton, on seeing whose Hamlet old Pepys exclaimed, to the annoyance of his neighbors, "Fore God! it is the best acted part I ever saw." Macklin, whom Pope declared to be the "very Jew that Shakespeare drew." and who walked upon the stage with good Miss Pope as Portia, Agent for the celebrated NE PLUS ULTRA SPRING BEDS, pronounced by those who have examined them Macklin, whom Pope declared to be the "very Jew that Shakespeare drew." and who walked upon the stage with good Miss Pope as Portia, to play Shylock, after his one hundreth year, and thereafter played it no more forever. A few days latter he was standing at the grave of an old-time comrade of the theatre; he stood so wrapped that a friend touched his arm to arouse him. "Do not disturb me sir!" he said, "I am at my rehearsal." Only a few days more and his mourning associates were at his grave. There were also Booth, Wilks, Sanford, Nokes, Leigh, Penkethman, Bullock, Estcourt, Dogget, who played the Jew as a low comedy part; Cibber, the prince of coxcombs, and the first reformer of the stage; Quin, Rich, Weston, Shuter, Dowton, and Garrick. Among the women were good Mrs. Betterton; Mrs. Barry, scarcely so good, for Lord Rochester kept her; Mrs. Bracegirdle, who left the thea-tre because Anne Oldfield acted better than she did, and who presented to her conqueror all her stage jewels and dresses, so great a wo-man was she in her defeat; Mrs. Cibber, whose husband, Theophilus Cibber, sold her fer a thousand pounds; Mrs. Pritchard, who Dr. Johnson said always spoke of her, "gowu'd;" beautiful Mrs. Abingdon, Anne Bellamy, Peg Woffington, who kept Garrick, Mrs. Crawford, Mrs. Yates, Mrs. Jordan, Miss Kelly, and greatest of all, Sarah Siddons .- "Gossip About Actors," in Galaxy for May.

"DEAD HEADS."-Mr. Lewis McKenzie, President of the Washington and Ohio Railroad Company, concludes his answers to the interrogatories of the House Committee on Roads and Internal Navigation as follows: "I would be thankful if the Committee would report a bill making it a penal offence for any railroad company to issue a free pass except so far as may be necessary for its own officers. They have passed such a law in New Hampshire, and I think it would work well in Virginia, as a matter of public policy as well as of mercy to the presidents of the companies, who are fairly hunted down by would-be dead-Leads."

VICTOR SEWING MACHINES.

Among its many points of excellence may be mentioned that it is the only lock-stitch machine that has its needle self-setting. The needle cannot be set not be set wrong.
It has a shuttle-carrier that obviates all friction of shuttle, rendering the machine nearly noiseless.

It has a self-adjusting bobbin-winder, requiring no change to wind the bobbin.

Combines all the latest improvements, having no wires or spiral springs connected with its working parts.

It has a positive thread-controller and tension, requiring no change in sewing from the finest to the heaviest material. The new patent shuttle is the most convenient and perfect working shuttle in use. The tension does not change from a full to an empty bobbin.

It is so easily operated that it requires little instruction, and there is nothing in it to get out of perfect working order. It will stitch, hem, fell, bind, cord. gather, quilt, hem-stitch, embroider, braid, &c., with as much beauty and perfection as any machine before the public.
